

GASPÉ OF YESTERDAY

VOLUME III

"We give you ships and tides and men
Anchors away and windfilled sails.
We give you back the sea again
In sailors' songs and rousing tale.

And inland where the dark hills rise
Between you and the salt thick foam
You hear the surf, the seagull cries
And eastward turn your hearts toward home."

